PREFACE.

As Xenophon's Memorabilia, and Cæsar's Commentaries have remained the standards of all subsequent histories of the times and peoples they described; so the authentic annals of the rise of any civil or religious community can not be changed by omissions, interpolations, or additions to the text, without more or less sacrificing the truthfulness and justice of history. Particular mention of persons, and description of incidents, unsuitable to later periods and larger ranges of history, give piquancy and pictorial interest to the account of the origin of Churches and denominations. Thus in the exodus from Egypt, and in the building and rebuilding of the Temple at Jerusalem, a few names are made resplendent in the inspired narrative. As the history of the rise of the First Baptist Church in Chicago is also a history of the rise of the denomination in this metropolis, if not in the Northwest, additional interest is given to sketches of persons, pastorates, and all the pioneer enterprises which culminated in the Baptist history of Chicago and the Northwest.

Cyrus Bentley possessed rare qualifications for chronicler of the events transpiring in the first period of Chicago Baptist history. He came to Chicago in 1846, received from original sources the traditions of the first decade of that history, became personally and intimately acquainted with all the pastors except the first two, whose terms of service were brief. His talents and rare culture fitted him to be a personal actor in all the church and denominational enterprises of the city. He was for many years clerk of the church and guardian of its records. He was for a long time teacher of a large Bible class, and for some time superintendent of the Sunday school. He was the first president of the Young Men's Christian Association of Chicago. And withal he was a man of exceptional conscientiousness, and scrupulous impartiality. With such a historian, the denominational histories of some other cities would not have been left in such inextricable confusion.

After the removal of the First Church to the more southern part of the city, Bro. Bentley united with other down town Baptists, to strengthen the Michigan Avenue Baptist Church, and was conspicuous in its struggles, and in its reorganization as the Immanuel Church, under Dr. Lorimer's pastorate. As he has recently passed away from the Church militant to the Church triumphant, this history may remain a memorial to one, so generous in appreciation of others, but so modest in suppressing his own name in a history in which he acted so conspicuous a part.

This history prepared by the order of the church was first published in 1866, re-published with explanatory notes in 1871, and published a third time with additional notes in 1877, tracing more fully the lines of the history of the church since the first publication. It has been thought best to give the original history, without deviation from the original text, with such notes at the bottom of the page, as will give a clear view of the history of the church, and an outline of the history of the denomination in Chicago and vicinity. Whatever new matter has been discovered, or supplemental statement added by the excellent history of the late honored clerk of the church, Leander Stone, or the history of Rev. E. O. Taylor, prepared for the semi-centennial celebration of the church, may be appended as notes at the foot of the page, without impairing the unity of the original record. As renowned family castles have been built in England by adding section after section, at different periods, to the architectural pile, each associated with ancestral memories, without disturbing any part of the foundation, or removing a single feature of the original structure, so annals of succeeding periods of the history of the church may be added to this ecclesiastical monument, without displacing a single fact or a single record of the original structure. It is recommended that the two histories above alluded to, and all other material, for elucidating the rise of the First Baptist Church, and of the Baptist denomination, be carefully kept on file by the clerk of the church, and under the guardianship of its official boards.

HISTORY.

In the year 1832 the AMERICAN BAPTIST HOME MISSION SOCIETY was organized in the city of New York, and among the first of its appointments was that of Rev. Allen B. Freeman, to labor as a missionary in Northern Illinois.[1] In August, 1833, when Chicago was a wilderness—when the Indian roamed wild and free where now are paved streets and marble palaces, Mr. Freeman arrived upon the field of his labors, and reared here, upon the shores of Lake Michigan, as much to the wondering gaze of the savage as to the gratified vision of the few disciples then dwelling here, the banner of the Cross. Thanks be unto God, that banner has never been lowered, but, full high advanced, has waved above every ensign of commerce, arts and learning, gathering under its crimson folds the emigrant Christians of every clime.

Mr. Freeman found a hospitable home in the family of the esteemed Dr. John P. Temple,[2] then residing in

[1] The first Baptist, who was also the first Protestant, came to Chicago from Kentucky, in 1811, the wife of Capt. Heald, commander of Fort Dearborn. The first Baptist minister was Isaac McCoy, who preached the first Protestant sermon in Chicago in 1825. He was afterward for many years missionary to the Indians in the Northwest and was supported by the Government.

[2] Mr. Temple was a mail contractor of the government, and taking great interest in establishing a Baptist Church in the Indian village on Lake Michigan, had already written to and visited Chicago, now of St. Louis. He prosecuted his mission work from house to house, and seeking out the few sheep that had strayed into this far-western wilderness, gathered them together, and broke unto them the bread of life.

The erection of a meeting-house by the few Baptists in Chicago, and those sympathizing with them, was commenced soon after Mr. Freeman began his missionary labors. It was an humble edifice, designed both as a place of religious worship and as a school-house, and cost, when completed, the sum of six hundred dollars, one hundred and fifty dollars of which was in arrears, and remained a debt upon the property.

On the 12th of October, 1833, a meeting was called of those claiming to be Baptists, with a view to the organization of a church. Six persons were assembled, holding letters from different churches; and the meeting adjourned to the 19th of the same month, for the same purpose. In the meantime others of the wandering had been found, increasing the number from six to fifteen, and it was at this meeting that the First Baptist Church of the city of Chicago was organized. Not only was it the First Baptist Church of the city of the Home Mission Society in New York to promote that object. He received the missionary, whose appointment he had secured, in his hospitable home, pledged to the missionary society half of his support, contributed a large portion of the amount required to build the first cheap meeting house, and was described to Dr. Going, secretary of the H. M. Society by the first pastor, as "Parsonage, salary and supply!"

Chicago, but, as is believed, it was the First Baptist Church of the North-West, north of Peoria. At this meeting Peter Worden was elected clerk, and Martin D. Harmon deacon. The right hand of fellowship was given by Mr. Freeman to the fourteen surrounding him, and articles of faith, covenant and practice were adopted.

On the 12th of January following, Mr. Freeman was chosen pastor of the church for one year from the first of that month; but, alas! before that period terminated, on the 15th of December, 1834, while prosecuting with unremitting toil his missionary work — seeking out, not only among the people coming to this place, but also upon the prairies around, the straying disciples, and endeavoring to organize them into churches, the good man ceased from his labors and entered upon the rest that remains for the people of God. He passed away amid his usefulness and promise, sending the comforting message to his revered father: "I die at my post, and in my Master's work."[3]

During his brief connection with the Church, there were added to its membership of fifteen, twelve by letter and four by baptism. The ordinance of baptism was administered by Mr. Freeman, in the waters of Lake Michigan. The administrator and the candidate going down into the water, amid the quiet of the Sabbath — not broken then, as now — people of all sects gathering upon the shore, and little groups of wondering Indians looking on from afar, presented a scene of touching solemnity and interest.

Five churches had sprung up on the surrounding prairies, as the immediate fruits of Mr. Freeman's untiring labors; and the fatigue and exposure attending a journey to one of the outposts was the occasion of his early death.

In July, 1835, the Rev. I. T. Hinton was installed as the second pastor of this Church, and a worthy successor his labors proved him to be. Previous to this time efforts had been made to secure a more convenient place of worship, and two members of the Church had been sent east to solicit aid. A lot was procured on Madison street, between La Salle and Wells, and the foundation of a house laid, thirty-five by fifty feet. Subsequently this location was abandoned, mainly on the ground of its remoteness from the center of population, and a lot was donated by the State from the canal lands, under the provisions of the law for dedication of lots, in the towns situated on those lands, to public purposes. This lot was located at the corner of Washington and Lasalle streets, being one hundred and eighty by eighty feet.[4]

In the year 1836, Mr. Hinton was sent East, to solicit aid for the erection of a house of worship, and on his return reported the net proceeds of his mission to be $846.48. Encouraged by this assistance, the foundation of a building was laid on the front part of the lot given to them, and some of the wood-work prepared for the designed edifice; but the disastrous financial revulsion of 1836 and 1837 occurring, the church was unable to proceed with its contemplated building, and a very rude structure on the rear of the lot, originally put up as a temporary workshop for those engaged on the proposed church, was fitted up with some additions and improvements, and was used as the place of worship until 1844. One of the additions was for a time occupied by the colored brethren of the Methodist church on Jackson street.

In 1841 the Rev. Mr. Hinton closed his pastoral labors with the church, and removed to St. Louis.[5] He was succeeded, after an interval of some months, by the Rev. C. B. Smith, who became pastor of the church in September, 1842. The next year the pastorate became vacant, and a number of members, in all thirty-two, withdrew, and formed the Second Baptist, called the Tabernacle Church.[6]

[5] Mr. Hinton was a brother of the eminent London Baptist preacher, John Howard Hinton. He gave a series of discourses on prophecy and Christian evidences, which attracted marked attention. It was said infidels feared his orthodoxy, and Pedo-Baptists his Baptism. After a pastorate of six years in Chicago, and a successful ministry of several years in St. Louis, he removed to New Orleans, where he died of yellow fever, after a ministry of great usefulness.

[6] This church arose from differences on the question of slavery, then being warmly discussed. They built a house near the First Church on LaSalle street, fronting the City Hall Square, but soon removed to Desplaines street, on the West Side, a more destitute field, and remained there till they united with members of the

In August, 1843, the Rev. E. H. Hamlin was called to the pastorate; and in January, 1844, the church resolved to undertake the erection of a new house of worship, and through many difficulties and sacrifices on the part of the members, succeeded in erecting a brick edifice fifty-five by eighty feet, at the cost of about $5,000, which was occupied until it was burned in 1852. The Rev. E. H. Hamlin having resigned in July, 1845, in October following the Rev. Miles Sanford was chosen his successor. Mr. Sanford continued his ministerial labors about two years, when he resigned, to take the oversight of a church in Massachusetts.

Rev. Luther Stone began in Chicago, August 10, 1847, the publication of the Watchman of the Prairies, a weekly Baptist paper, which, after nearly six years, was succeeded by The Christian Times, now The Standard. From about July 1, 1847, to September, 1848, a period of about fourteen months, the duties of acting pastor of the First Baptist Church were discharged by him.[7]

First Church in forming the Second Church, and in removing the house of the First Church to their present location on the corner of Morgan and Monroe streets. Their pastors, before re-organization, were: Revs. C. B. Smith, C. Blood, W. H. Rice, Lewis Raymond, A. Kenyon, Ira E. Kenney, H. K. Green, and N. Colver, afterwards the first professor in the Union Baptist Theological Seminary in Chicago.

[7] The first Baptist paper published in Chicago was called The Northwestern Baptist. It was sustained by the Northwestern Baptist Convention, and published by a committee, with Rev. C. B. Smith, the pastor of the First Church, as editor. The first

He was succeeded in September, 1848, by the fifth pastor of the church, Rev. Elisha Tucker, D.D., who came direct from the Oliver Street Baptist Church of New York city — a man than whom, without disparaging others, none more noble, more devoted, or more beloved ever adorned the pastoral office of this church. Tall, and well-developed physically, with a lofty brow, a prominent and pleasing eye, and a genial countenance, Dr. Tucker impressed favorably all who came into contact with him. In the street, in pastoral visitation, and in the social circle, he was accessible, cordial and affable, without lowering the dignity of his office or rendering himself obnoxious to the reproach of inconsistency between his daily walk and conversation, and the gospel he sought to inculcate. Of lofty number was dated September 20, 1842. The paper was issued semi-monthly, and was published for two years. The size of the page was eight and a half by eleven and a half inches.

Rev. Luther Stone came to Chicago in January, 1847, to consider the question of starting a weekly Baptist paper. On August 31, 1847, he brought out the first number of the Watchman of the Prairies—the name of the new weekly paper. From July 1, 1847, to September, 1848, Mr Stone served the First Baptist Church as supply and acting pastor, performing at the same time the duties of editor and proprietor of the Watchman of the Prairies, which he continued to publish at great personal sacrifice for five and a half years, until February 22, 1853.

It was August 31, 1853, that the first number of The Standard (then The Christian Times) was published. A committee had been appointed by the Fox River Association, consisting of Rev. J. C. Burroughs, Dr. L. D. Boone, A. D. Titsworth, O. Wilson and Rollin Anderson, to make arrangements for publishing a Baptist paper to succeed the Watchman of the Prairies. To this bearing in the pulpit, having a well-trained and harmonious voice, earnest in manner, eloquent in discourse, speaking from behind the Cross, he enchained the attention and carried conviction to his hearers. But alas! the arduous and responsible labors of his office in connection with the Oliver Street Church, had undermined the foundation of his constitution; and although laboring with great energy and success in connection with this church for two and a half years, he was at length obliged to yield to the encroachments of a disease which, culminating in paralysis, removed him to the spirit-land.

In the spring of 1851 Dr. Tucker offered his resignation. This the church unanimously declined to accept, but proffered him a leave of absence for six months, in the hope that by travel and relaxation he might regain his declining health and be enabled to committee the subscription list of the Watchman was transferred by Rev. Luther Stone, and they accordingly commenced the publication of the paper. It was edited at first by an "Association of Clergymen" — Rev. J. C. Burroughs, Rev. H. G. Weston and Rev. A. J. Joslyn. Dr. Burroughs was the principal editor. Edward Goodman, the present senior proprietor of The Standard, who had come to Chicago in July, 1852, took out the first number and canvassed the churches for subscribers. Dr. Burroughs, with his associates, remained in possession for about three months, when the paper was transferred to Rev. Leroy Church and Rev. Justin A. Smith as editors and proprietors, and the first issue containing the announcement of the change was dated November 24, 1853. In November, 1854, Rev. J. F. Childs became associated with Rev. Leroy Church as proprietor in place of Dr. Smith. Mr. Childs retired in September, 1855, and Mr. Church was sole proprietor until January, resume his ministerial labors. But vain hope! the glorious gospel of the blessed God, which he had so much loved to commend to dying men, was his to proclaim no more. During his connection with the church, two years and a half, as many had been added to her membership as in the nearly eighteen years of her previous history.

For the year and a half succeeding the resignation of Dr. Tucker, the pulpit was supplied by Rev. Mr. Page, Rev. W. C. Brown and Rev. J. R. Balme, until October, 1852, when Rev. J. C. Burroughs was chosen pastor. Immediately thereafter, on the twentieth day of the same month, the church building was destroyed by fire, while workmen were employed in repairing the roof. This occurred at noon; and so rapid was the progress of the flames, that, before efficient aid could be obtained, all hope of saving the house was lost, and it was soon a smoldering heap of ruins. The next evening a special church meeting was called, at which it was resolved to take immediate measures to build a house of worship on the same ground, and a committee of twelve was appointed to procure subscriptions for this purpose. Subscriptions were raised, 1857, at which time the firm was changed to Church & Goodman. In January, 1875, Mr. Church retired, and the firm was then changed to Goodman & Dickerson, Rev. James S. Dickerson, D.D., of Boston, purchasing Mr. Church's interest; Dr. Justin A. Smith continuing as editor-in-chief, which position he has occupied since November, 1853, to the present time. After the death of Dr. Dickerson, in March, 1876, Mrs. E. R. Dickerson and J. Spencer Dickerson became associated with Mr. Goodman, the firm name remaining unchanged.

and such progress made as to enable the church to lay the foundations and place the corner-stone on the 4th of July, 1853, and on the 12th day of November following the house was dedicated to the cause of Christ. The cost of the edifice was about $30,000.

Rev. J. C. Burroughs remained pastor of the church until May, 1856, when he resigned the office, and entered upon the great work of founding a University in our city. It was to his careful management and unremitting labors that a large tract of land, comprising some ten acres, in the suburbs of the city, the gift of the lamented Hon. Stephen A. Douglas, was secured to the Baptist denomination, after it had been proffered to another ; and by the united efforts of Rev. Dr. Burroughs and Rev. J. B. Olcott, large subscriptions of money were obtained, and the south wing of the University building was erected.

In the important work of establishing this University for the education of the young men of the Northwest, this church has borne a principal part ; and her members, while colonizing in various parts of the city, organizing new churches, erecting houses of worship, planting mission Sabbath schools, and aiding in sending the gospel to the heathen, have been the most sympathizing and trusted advisers and liberal supporters of this enterprise. Through the labors of Professor Mixer, then professor of the Greek language and literature in the University, and a member of this church, aided by Rev. M. G. Clark, then financial secretary of the University, and also a member of this church, the requisite funds were obtained, and the observatory and main building of the University erected, making the entire pile of buildings, so far as completed, one of the largest and finest looking seats of learning on the continent. Besides this, at a later period, when a crisis in the finances of the University seemed to have been reached, and when the church could ill spare his labors, the present pastor, Dr. Everts, visited New York, and, through his own personal exertions and influence, obtained upwards of twenty thousand dollars, nearly the entire amount requisite fully to endow the Greek Professorship in the University, inspiring those abroad subject to his influence, as he ever did his church at home, with his own enthusiastic expectation, that the University of Chicago was destined to become one of the very first Universities of the land. If it has not already attained that proud eminence, it certainly can not be from any lack of devotion and service on the part of this church.[10]

Allied to the University enterprise is that of the Baptist Theological Seminary of Chicago. The first movement to secure a property foundation for this object, was also made by our pastor. The increase in value of the real estate secured by him, and the value of the Theological Library obtained and made availa-

[10]Upon the removal of Messrs. Mixer and Clark from the positions they had so ably filled, the representatives of the First Church, including the pastor and Messrs. Cyrus Bentley, James E. Tyler and James K. Burtis withdrew from the Board, having been moved thereto by a hope that the Board would be re-organized with the view of securing greater harmony and efficiency.

ble to the Seminary originally through his agency, together with thirty-five thousand dollars contributed by the members of this church directly for the Seminary building and endowment, place this church on the record of this (as of the University) enterprise, creditably alike for her forecast and benevolence.[11]

About two hundred persons joined the church while Dr. Burroughs was connected with it as pastor. The State anniversaries of the Baptist denomination, as also the American Baptist Missionary Union, were entertained by this church during that period.

Just before Dr. Burroughs resigned the pastorate of the church, the Edina Place Church was organized in the South Division of the city, almost exclusively from the members of this church. After several years of prosperity in that location, they removed to Wabash

[11]The pastor called the meeting which led to the organization of the Seminary in an ante-room of the church, presenting to the few assembled the rough draft of a constitution, upon which a committee was appointed to report at a future meeting.

He procured the first contribution toward endowment in real estate in Chicago given by the Colgate family of New York, which rose at length to the estimated value of about twelve thousand dollars.

He raised from friends in New York money for the first payment on Seminary lots, now estimated to be worth more than thirty thousand dollars.

To free the Seminary from liabilities incurred by building, by excess of current expenses above receipts, and by failure of plans to pay off its debts, and at the same time to secure more adequate appointments and ampler endowments, the institution removed to Morgan Park, a suburb of Chicago, where it was opened in September, 1877.

J. C. Burroughs

avenue, and assumed the name of the "Wabash Avenue Church." At this place their successive pastors, Robert Boyd, D.D., Rev. E. G. Taylor, Samuel Baker, D. D., and Jesse B. Thomas, D.D., ministered with increasing success. During the last year, under the administration of Dr. Thomas, a new site was secured and a magnificent house erected thereon, the whole property costing about $160,000—a credit not only to that church, but to the city and to the denomination They have now again taken their name from the street whereon they are situated, and will hereafter be known as the "Michigan Avenue Baptist Church."[12]

Rev. W. G. Howard, D.D., of the Second Baptist Church of Rochester, New York, was chosen to succeed Mr. Burroughs, and he entered upon the pastoral charge of the church in the latter part of May, 1856. In September following, the Union Park Church was organized in the West Division of the city, principally from the members of this church ; and in November of the year following, the North Church was organized, also mainly from members of this church ; and again, in April following, a church was organized at Evanston, twelve miles north of this city, from members of this church, who had removed their residence from Chicago to that place.

Yet, notwithstanding so many had gone forth from this church to rear the standard of the Cross upon these four new fields of labor, the increase was such that the growth of the mother church was constant and permanent. In the early part of 1859 Dr. Howard resigned his connection with the church, and removed to New Orleans. During the period of his ministry with us about two hundred and twenty had united with the church.[13]

In May, 1859, Rev. W. W. Everts, D.D., then of the Walnut Street Baptist Church of Louisville, Kentucky, was chosen to succeed Dr. Howard, and entered upon the pastoral charge of the church about the first of August following, in which relation he has continued until the present time with signal success. In no period of the history of the church has such progress been made in works of benevolence, in the activity and growth of mission Sabbath-school work, in church extension, and in educational enterprises, as since Dr. Everts came among us. As he entered upon the care of the church, he found her laboring under great financial embarrassment. A debt of $14,000 weighed like an incubus upon all her energies, and stayed her spiritual advancement. About one-half of this debt was incurred in the erection of a house of worship, and had remained a drag upon the financial interests of the church since that time. The other half had from the same time gradually accumulated by deficiencies in receipts of the church, to meet the interest upon the principal debts, incidental assessments for repairs and improvements upon the church property, and the current expenses of the church. The new pastor, feeling that no great spiritual progress could reasonably be expected while so heavy a financial burden pressed upon the body, gave his best energies at once to provide for its liquidation; and having laid his plan before the brethren, and gained their approval of it, at the close of a discourse on the ever memorable Sabbath, September 25th, 1859, from the text, "The love of Christ constraineth us," he made an appeal to the congregation present to discharge this indebtedness. God heard the prayers of the church, and touched the hearts of the people, so that in the brief period of forty minutes pledges were handed in to the amount of about $12,000. On the following Tuesday evening a reunion of the church and society was had for mutual congratulation over the success of the effort thus made, and there, amid the jubilations of the assembly, the balance of the $14,000 was fully made up —a consummation most devoutly wished, most thankfully achieved. Perhaps no event of a merely temporal nature has ever transpired in the history of this church, fraught with so much of good, or which opened the way for such generous and courageous effort in the future to advance the cause of Christ, as the provision thus made for the discharge of all her financial liabilities.

During the following year the building occupied by the New Street Mission Sabbath-school, connected with this church, was removed to another and more eligible field of missionary labor. The lot upon which it was located, together with the enlargement, improvement and refurnishing of the house, cost about $5,000. The most of this was the donation of a noble Christian lady, temporarily sojourning in Chicago, to whose active benevolence our pastor had successfully commended the enterprise. The school, taking the name of the donor has since been called and known as the "Shields Mission Sabbath-school of the First Baptist Church."

For the ten succeeding years, the young members of this church, with unwearied fidelity, and continual prosperity, have prosecuted the work of this mission; leading hundreds of poor children to the Sabbath-school, inducing scores of adults to attend the prayer-meetings and preaching services held at this place, from both of which classes many whose names now appear upon the records of this church have found a home with the people of God. In 1869, those having special charge of the mission, influenced by the changes constantly occurring in the centres of business and population of our rapidly-growing city, deemed it expedient to remove the mission farther south, and the church approving the measure, lots having a frontage of 100 feet on Twenty-fifth street, near Wentworth avenue, and a depth of 125 feet, were purchased, upon which a commodious brick building, 66x75 feet, has already been erected and now awaits completion. The lots and house when finished according to the plan, with first-class modern appointments, capable of accommodating about 1,000 adults, or 1,200 children, will make a property worth $20,000.[14]

[14] By the advice of a Council of Baptist Churches, yielded to rather than approved by the Church, this Mission was organized

CYRUS BENTLEY.

During the same year—1860—while the church was prosecuting its mission work in the southern part of this city, the mission-school in the northern part of the city, under the care of this church, known as the "Bremer Avenue School," was removed still farther north, to the corner of Division and Sedgwick streets. Lots were purchased, and a beautiful and commodious house, combining the purposes of a school-house and church, was erected. This house was dedicated in 1862. Subsequently a parsonage was built upon the rear part of the lots; and the whole property, of the present value of about $30,000, is a noble monument to the enterprise of this church. Here, as at the Shields Mission, hundreds of children and adults have been gathered for religious instruction, many of whom have been brought to a saving knowledge of Christ, and within the fold of the church. A pastor was supported at this mission chiefly from contributions from this church, until in 1870, it having become self-supporting, the mission was organized into an independent church, having some eighty members.

During the period of its existence as a mission, Rev. Geo. L. Wrenn labored as pastor for a period of some five years, and under his successful ministry the mission into an independent Church, before it was able to manage its own finances. The First Church continued to contribute toward her annual expenses, as much as a thousand dollars a year.

But the growing financial embarrassments of the times, and a divided financial administration in the new Church, made it impossible to save the property, and the Twenty-fifth Street Church disbanded.

ripened into a church. Bro. Wrenn was succeeded by Rev. E. R. Pierce, who officiated as pastor, until the present time, and as he leaves for new fields of labor in the growing State of Kansas, Rev. J. M. Whitehead, late of Kankakee, enters upon the pastorate with great promise.[15]

In 1866 a mission was established by this church in the vicinity of Ward's Rolling Mills, in the northwestern part of the city. Lots were purchased, and a commodious church edifice erected. The expense of sustaining this mission was borne mainly by persons on the field, and the church was only too happy to aid in the organization of this mission into an independent church in the early part of the year 1870, and is now ready to transfer the property, valued at $6,000, to the new organization.[16]

Besides these important and prosperous missions, already mentioned, our pastor, in 1862, added another [15] The fire of 1871 had burned out the North Star buildings which were covered by a small mortgage for the parsonage, that threatened to sink all equity in the lots. The members of the Church suffered also by the fire, and were unable to take steps to save the property. The pastor immediately projected measures which were carried out with the co-operation of Brethren Wrenn and Whitehead, and later by the Church itself, which led to saving and rebuilding one of the most important Church properties in the city. The proceeds of this property, amounting nearly to seventy thousand dollars, were subsequently used in founding the Lasalle Avenue Baptist Church.

[16] The property was transferred free of debt to the Coventry Street Church, and later incorporated into the present Ashland Avenue Baptist Church, after change of name.

not less important. Almost unaided, so far as the actual labor of the enterprise was concerned, he secured four eligible lots in the southern part of the city, about a half mile north of the University, and caused to be erected thereon a beautiful brick church edifice, which was dedicated in the Spring of 1863. A Sabbath-school was at once organized and conducted by members of this church. In 1864, a new church was organized by members of this and the Wabash avenue churches, under the name of the "Indiana Avenue Baptist Church," and the property, now valued at not less than $25,000, was deeded to the new organization by this church. Rev. J. A. Smith, D.D., Rev. M. S. Riddell, D.D., and the present pastor, Rev. F. D. Rickerson, have been the successive pastors of the Indiana Avenue Church to the present time, and much prosperity has attended their respective labors.[17]

In the latter part of the year 1868, a large delegation was sent out by letter from this church, to organize in the vicinity of the University of Chicago a new church, now known as the "University Place Baptist Church." They have worshiped thus far in the chapel

[17] After the great fire which brought all the churches into the utmost peril, both the Indiana Avenue and the University Place Churches made overtures looking to a union with the First Church, whose removal farther south was already determined on. In the case of the Indiana Avenue Church such union was accomplished, the First Church securing its members and taking charge of its house of worship, where religious services were conducted by Rev. W. W. Everts jr., until the completion of the new edifice of the First Church at South Park Avenue and Thirty-first Street.

of the University, and for about a year past, have enjoyed the services of our eminent brother, Wm. B. Hague, D.D., as pastor, who, however, was compelled by the illness of his late lamented wife to remove to another pastorate, in a locality supposed to be more favorable to her health. The church, though thus sadly deprived of the services of their beloved pastor, nevertheless maintain statedly public worship, and are entering upon the work of building a house of worship with much promise of success.[18]

In 1864, leading members of the First Church, carrying with them the enterprise of the body, removed to Evanston. The church at that place, which had virtually become extinct, was resuscitated, a tasteful house of worship erected, and an able young pastor, Rev. W. J. Leonard, secured. After his removal, and a period of considerable discouragement, the church was [18] A fine rear building was completed; and later the church removed to Oakwood Boulevard, one of the most important centers of population in Chicago. The pastors have been, J. A. Smith, thirty-six years editor of the Standard, as well as helper of all Baptist causes and for several years Professor at Morgan Park. William Hague, one of the most cultured and eminent Baptists of this country, recently deceased; Dr. A. J. Frost, still preaching in California; A. E. Owen, now president of Roger Williams University at Nashville; S. Burhoe, now a successful and popular pastor at Rockford, Ill., and N. E. Wood, formerly president of Beaver Dam School, and now the eloquent pastor of Strong Place Church, Brooklyn. Rev. E. D. Burr has just entered upon the pastorate of this Church, and with increasing numbers and growing congregations is confronting the necessity of building a larger and better appointed place of worship.

restored to an enlarged prosperity under the labors of Rev. M. G. Clark.[19]

In addition to these important missionary enterprises so successfully undertaken and guarded by this church, requiring necessarily large and incessant drafts upon the time, the toil and the money of the membership, the church proper has maintained a steady onward progress in the work of our Divine Master. Rarely has a communion occurred without new members being welcomed to her fellowship. The home Sabbath-school blessed with the labors of brother B. F. Jacobs for a long series of years as superintendent, has increased its membership to about one thousand; and in the harmony of its system of exercises, and in the remarkable attainments and progress of the scholars in scriptural knowledge, it has become an acknowledged "model school." Large numbers of the scholars, under the religious influences here so affectionately [19] Rev. M. G. Clark, in various spheres rendered in his day invaluable service to the denomination. He was a master workman and laid foundations of great Baptist enterprises, especially in Springfield, Mass., Norwich, Conn., in Philadelphia and Indianapolis.

In connection with Prof. Mixer, he labored indefatigably for the erection of the main building of the University, as also to secure the observatory and telescope, which latter was long regarded as one of the largest and best in America.

After the severance of his connection with the University he rendered valuable service to the Seminary—was subsequently pastor in Evanston—and died a few years ago, lamented, honored and beloved. The subsequent pastors of the church at Evanston have been Rev. E. L. Chappell, Rev. Mr. Pierce, Rev. Fred Clatworthy, and Rev. H. A. Delano, the present incumbent.

and faithfully bestowed, have been numbered among the followers of Christ, and their names enrolled upon the records of the church. For several years the averaged attendance upon the Home Mission Schools was more than two thousand, and on one anniversary, more than three thousand were present in the church.[20]

Besides the above mission work, the church has from the beginning been the staunch friend and supporter of the Fifth Baptist Church in its struggle to erect its house of worship, and preserve its property, many times in great peril of loss from financial embarrasments. The First Church has contributed about $8,000 to this enterprise alone.[21]

Not only in these church extensions in Chicago has the church continued to manifest a noble public spirit, but in freely allowing the pastor time to attend dedications; thus cheering and helping scores of churches in the great crisis of their history.

In the early part of the year 1864, when the church

[20] B. F. Jacobs is now serving as superintendent of the Emmanuel Sunday school. While in the Sunday-school service of the First Church, he not only gave time and strength, but thousands of dollars toward the support of her Sunday-school work.

Another of the older Sunday-school workers should be named, D. W. Baker, who spent some $6,000 in connection with his superintendence of the North Star Sunday-school, and later wrought efficiently with Shields Mission and the Wrenn school, and is still honored in the official service of the Church.

[21] Owing to financial and other discouragements, and lack of denominational sympathy and help, this church lost its property and disbanded.

had reached a point of usefulness unrivalled in its past history, and when its membership was larger than at any period since its organization, the advancing tide of commercial enterprise, levying new demands upon the central portions of the city, for the future theaters of its operations, was heard surging against the walls of the old edifice, and admonishing the church that the spot so long hallowed by innumerable tender and sacred associations must soon yield to the march of events. The conviction had for some time past been forced upon many of the church, that the centers of population and business in the city were undergoing such important changes that the time was not far distant when our place of worship must also be changed. And now, when the announcement was made that the Chamber of Commerce, comprising the largest business interest of the city, had come to regard the site occupied by us as the most eligible for the great Merchants' Exchange of the city, and that a good price could be secured for the property, it was at once resolved, though not without sincere regrets on the part of many, that the property should be disposed of, if an adequate remuneration could be secured. A committee was accordingly appointed to open negotiations with the Chamber of Commerce, which resulted in securing an offer of $65,000 for the property, exclusive of the church edifice. The church voted to accept this proposition, and in the same action provided that the house of worship and a portion of the $65,000 should be distributed among the other Baptist churches of the city, which had been organized in whole or in part from the membership of this church. The sale and distribution having been thus resolved upon, a committee was appointed for the purpose, which, after prayerful deliberation and mature reflection, reported in favor of the following distribution, which was adopted by the church — a resolution having been previously formed that at least one third of the property should be given to different Baptist interests of Chicago.

About fifty members of the First Church, residing in the West Division of the city, took their letters, and together with the members of the Tabernacle Church, organized a new society, under the name of the "Second Baptist Church." This new society caused the old house of the First Church to be carefully taken down and removed to the corner of Monroe and Morgan streets, where it was re-erected in its former style and arrangement, the whole costing about $20,000. The Rev. E. J. Goodspeed was immediately called to the pastorate of the new church, which position he has continued to fill to the present time, with great success.

The North Baptist Church, aided by the above donation, at once purchased a lot and removed their house upon it. They have since purchased and refitted another house, upon another site, disposing of their property for this purpose, and are now in a prosperous condition.[22]

The Wabash Avenue Church, with the aid thus secured to them, at once canceled the pecuniary liabilities under which they had suffered prolonged embarrassment, and entered upon that new career of prosperity which has recently culminated in their new house of worship above mentioned.

The Union Park Church, encouraged by the $4,000 received by them, purchased a lot upon the corner of Washington and Paulina streets, in the West Division of the city, and erected a new house of worship thereon, the whole at a cost of $25,000. Rev. E. G. Taylor, then of the Wabash Avenue Church, having accepted the pastorate of this church, entered upon his duties, and preached the dedicatory sermon of their new house on the 4th of November, 1865.[23]

Only about fifteen hundred dollars were saved from their property, and ultimately contributed to the Central Church enterprise, the now Belden Avenue Baptist Church.

The Berean, now called the "Fifth Baptist Church," made considerable improvements in its house, which was afterwards sold, and it has purchased a new site, and is building a new house, to which allusion has above been made.

Thus the First Baptist Church was permitted to behold with pride and gratitude the establishment and prosperous advancement of these cherished daughters in Christ. At the same time, she herself stepped upon higher ground, and assumed with cheerful alacrity the new and weightier responsibilities devolved upon her by this great and important change in her spiritual and temporal relations. Having, besides the donations of the church edifice and furniture (valued by the committee as above at $10,000, but really not less than $20,000), disbursed, as above stated, $15,000 in money to other churches, she expended about one-half of the amount remaining of the proceeds of the sale of the old site in the purchase of a new one, on Wabash avenue, just south of Hubbard Court, having a frontage of 112 and a depth of 165 feet, to a spacious alley. Immediately measures were inaugurated for the erection of a new house of worship upon this new site — a house that should be creditable to the past history of the church, adequate to the new and increasing demands of the denomination upon her in the future, and. it is hoped, in some measure worthy of the Great Head of the Church, whose we are, and whom we serve.

[23] The pastorate of this church was subsequently held by Rev. Mr. Dixon, now dead, Florence McCarthy, who has since left the ministry, Rev. Dr. D. B. Cheney, Rev. Dr. J. S. Kennard and Rev. J. Wolfenden, the present incumbent. The church is now preparing to build a commodious and beautiful house on Ashland Avenue.

The estimated cost of this proposed temple of God was in the outset about $100,000, and pledges sufficient to defray the entire cost upon the basis of that estimate were proffered from all classes of the church and congregation — the poor as well as the rich, the young as well as the old. The large advance which soon followed in prices of labor and material, however, soon demonstrated that a large per cent. would have to be added to the original estimate of cost to complete the cost.

In no wise daunted, however, the church went forward, toiling, sacrificing and praying, until the whole enterprise (costing not less than $175,000, including the lot, the building, and the furnishing), was accomplished.

This building, including the main edifice in front, and the transverse building in the rear, covered an area of 13,800 feet. The main edifice was 75 by 108 feet. The auditorium was 70 by 105 feet in the clear, and 56 feet in height, from the floor to the apex, and furnished sittings for 1,550 people, in the pews below and galleries above.

The transverse building, in the rear, was 40 by 112 feet. The lecture room seated 600 people, and was so arranged that on occasions of overcrowded assemblies in the main audience room, it could be opened in connection with the main room, so that, together with the open vestibules, on great occasions, an assembly in the aggregate of 2,000 people might be comfortably seated, and nearly all in full view, as well as within hearing, of the speaker. The Sabbath-school room, for design, finish, and adaptation to the comfort and convenience of the Bible classes, and the school proper, was conceded to be unsurpassed, if equaled, by any other in the country. It accommodated comfortably about 800 scholars, and on occasions of great juvenile assemblies 1,000 persons could be accommodated.

The lecture-room was dedicated on the Sabbath, January 1, 1865. The main building was dedicated on the Sabbath, March 18, 1866. At this latter dedication, the cost of the whole property having swollen to the amount above named, and the church having consequently become involved in the large indebtedness of about $75,000, the pastor, at the close of his dedicatory discourse in the morning, appealed to the congregation in a manner he alone was capable of, to assist in relieving the church of this great burden; and before the assembly was dismissed, the tellers were able to count up responsive pledges from all classes, the rich and the poor, members of the church and congregation, and friends — to the magnificent sum of about $53,000. Not only was the entire balance fully provided for, but also a subsequent expenditure of about $10,000 for completing the towers. Joy and gratitude filled the hearts of all present.[24]

In May, 1867, the several societies connected with our denomination, held their anniversaries in this city, at our house of worship. There was the largest attendance upon these meetings ever known in the history of our denomination.[25]

[24] This history would be altogether too defective did we not speak of the death of Hon. Charles Walker, which occurred June 28, 1868, after 20 years' connection with this church, in which he filled the offices of Trustee and Deacon with great credit to himself and faithful devotion to the best interests of the church. A man of great forecast, of wise counsels, and large liberality he, perhaps more than any other person carried the church through some of its darkest periods of financial embarrassments. After about a year's painful illness, God called him to higher offices in the Church Triumphant.

[25] The death of our beloved sister, Mrs. Margaret K. Everts, wife of our pastor, Dr. W.W. Everts, on the 11th of October, 1866, not heretofore alluded to in this sketch, inflicted a wound which is still fresh, and almost incurable. In this last instance, alas! how great was the loss. In the seven years walk of that pious and beautiful woman with this church, none knew her but to love her, and none named her but to praise. A woman of great culture and refinement, as also of deep piety, she commanded the respect and confidence of all with whom she associated; of remarkable executive ability, she not only with eminent success performed the duties of wife and mother at home, but devised, organized, and led in the execution of numerous systems of charity and benevolence, not only in this church, but in the wider circles of society where all the various churches and creeds of the city were represented; and by her genial and accomplished manners, her wise counsels, her untiring labors and her outspoken charity, she won all hearts, and for herself and her church paralyzed the faintest

The great fire of 1871 burned out and dispersed our membership, the second fire in 1874 destroyed our universally admired and, to us, incomparable church home. We did not rebuild on the old site because experience has shown that a family church can not be successfully maintained in the business portion of a great city, and we were unwilling to jeopard the purposes of the founders of the church, its history and property, in an exceptional missionary enterprise, without the co-operation of the denomination. We removed so far from our old site, in pursuance of an agreement with the Indiana Avenue Church, made when we received their membership and property, also to avoid encroachment upon the field of the Michigan Avenue Baptist Church, and to occupy one of the most important future centers of population in the city. Notwithstanding manifold discouragements arising from the financial embarrassment of the community, from the small insurance on our lost building, from the depreciation of property, and from the failure of the contractors for new buildings, we entered the lecture-room of our new building, on the corner of South Park avenue and Thirty-first street, in Septemsuspicion of bigotry. Her presence in the church continued a blessing, until overtaxed with responsibilities, and exhausted by her too great self-sacrifice and toil in her Master's service, the silver cord was loosed and the golden bowl was broken. Though since her death many years have rolled their waves of forgetfulness upon the church, her beautiful life and pious example still survive fresh and fragrant in the recollections of those who knew her.

ber, 1875, and the main audience-room in April, 1876. Our appointments, in adaptation to church uses, are unsurpassed in the city, if not in the country. Already our Sunday-school, our prayer meetings and public assemblies, compare favorably in numbers and interest with those of the churches long established, in their respective fields. In the year ending June, 1877, there were sixty four received by baptism and fifty-five by letter.

As the result of rebuilding in a location so remote from the homes of many of the members and in a quarter of the city then only very sparsely settled, the First Church was temporarily subjected to the severest trials.

Many of its wealthiest members had been impoverished by the great fire. Following the great fire came the great panic of 1873, by which many more of its best men were overborne. Its assets were depreciated, and at the time unavailable. Debts for its missions, as well as for its new house of worship, crowded upon it until they reached the appalling sum of eighty thousand dollars.

And yet, in spite of all these discouragements, the Church bravely battled on, maintaining, even during its first three years in the new field, which were the most trying in its history, an annual income of nearly ten thousand dollars and augmenting its numbers by the addition of several hundred members, many of whom were received by baptism.

In January, 1879, Dr. W. W. Everts, worn with the long toil of nearly twenty years in a field to which he had consecrated the best energies of his life, tendered his resignation and closed his arduous and honorable pastorate.

After January 1st, 1879, Rev. Dr. Galusha Anderson and others supplied the pulpit for several months. The finance committee were busy meantime preparing a plan for funding the church debt, and on February 2nd and 9th subscriptions were made which resulted in reducing the church's obligations to $30,000. On February 19th a special church meeting was held, and the church re-organized under the corporation laws of 1872, and the trustees were authorized to mortgage the property for $30,000, which was done, and was so announced to the church on the 21st of March. Early in February a pulpit committee had been chosen to seek for a new pastor, and as the result of their labors on the evening of March 14th the church extended a unanimous call to the Rev. George C. Lorimer, D.D., then pastor of the Tremont Temple Church, Boston, who signified his acceptance on the 4th of April, and on Sunday May 4th, 1879, he preached his first sermon as pastor.

His ministrations from the first were successful in the highest degree and so continued to the close of his pastorate.

When he came the total membership of the church was 717. During the two years of his pastorate there were added to the church 441 persons, of whom 174 were received by baptism. In January, 1881, the church, after an appeal from the pastor, raised money sufficient to pay $12,000 on the mortgage, leaving only $18,000 as a debt on the church.

Early in 1881 the Michigan Avenue Baptist house of worship was destroyed by fire and the disaster was so great that the members seeing no way of rebuilding adopted a resolution to disband, expressing a willingness to transfer their remaining church property to any new Baptist church which should be organized and located upon the field lately occupied by them.

The matter was referred to the standing committee, representing the Chicago and Lakeside Baptist Associations, and the General Association of Illinois, and was by them referred to the First Baptist Church as most deeply interested in the settlement of the question.

The First Church reported by the appointment of a committee of five with instructions to ascertain the amount of money which could be obtained for the purpose of rebuilding the Michigan Avenue edifice, to make an estimate of the probable cost of such structure, and if the amount of money secured should be adequate to the undertaking, the First Church recommended the formation of a new Baptist church to take the title of the property as proposed by the Michigan Avenue people. A resolution was also adopted declaring that the First Church would cheerfully give letters of dismission to such of its members as should wish, either from choice or a sense of duty to unite with the new organization. A committee of five members was next appointed to co-operate with a similar committee of the Michigan Avenue brethren in carrying out the plan proposed. This committee after due consideration of the subject reported that a considerable number of persons were ready to unite with the new church, and that sufficient pledges of money had been secured to warrant re-building. The committee stated however, that the persons who had expressed a desire to unite with the new organization, and who had pledged money for re-building the Michigan Avenue house had done so on the condition that Dr. Lorimer should consent to become the leader and pastor of the new church. The committee expressed the opinion that if he would undertake the work, the new enterprise would be successful, the property would be saved, and the new church speedily become a strong and prosperous body. The report of the committee was adopted by the church. On May 1st, 1881, after the communion service, Dr. Lorimer tendered his resignation, basing it on the considerations indicated above. He thanked the church for their hearty co-operation during his pastorate, and assured them that he would never cease to cherish the most fragrant memories of them.

The resignation was referred to the deacons who subsequently reported to the church that while they could not but feel the deepest regret in parting with a pastor who had done so noble a work, and had so endeared himself to all the people, they profoundly appreciated the motives that prompted him, and the greatness of the denominational exigency that seemed to demand his going. They recommended that the pastor's resignation be accepted, but that pending the rehabilitation of the Michigan Avenue house, the pastor be requested to continue his pulpit ministrations in the First Church house, and that the new church organization be invited to participate with the First Church in all the religious services until such time as their own house should be completed.

Wm. C. Sumner

One cannot but be devoutly grateful to God that a movement that might so easily have furnished occasion for envy and strife was conducted with so much of Christian spirit, and characterized by so much of genuine magnanimity.

On the 13th of May, 1881, when the clerk read a list of 201 persons who had asked for letters to unite with the new church, there was a feeling on the part of the remaining members closely akin to dismay, especially as those who were about to withdraw were nearly all well-known, earnest, active, burden-bearing members.

For several weeks and even months afterward others were granted letters until the total number was about 250.

The First Church not only surrendered its popular pastor, and 250 of its best members, but added a love token of $2,500 in aid of the new enterprise. There were those who feared that the church would be depleted to the point of peril by such heroic sacrifices, and these fears were intensified when negotiations looking to a successor for Dr. Lorimer seemed for months to be unsuccessful.

The church had first made overtures to Dr. P. S. Henson, pastor of the Memorial Church in Philadelphia, but he felt that he could not leave the field where he was. Other names had been considered, but no satisfactory issue had been reached, and the pastorless church, left with greatly lessened numbers in a house but lately crowded with enthusiastic worshippers, began to be discouraged, and not without reason. Finally, Dr. Henson, moved thereunto as he believed by the spirit of God, re-considered his declination of the church's call, and on the first of March, 1882, was welcomed to Chicago by as enthusiastic a people as ever rallied around a pastor.

The attendance upon the church services was materially reduced for a time by the exodus of so large a portion of the church and congregation to the new and attractive house on Michigan Avenue, but the pastor and the people had faith in God and believed that His blessing would follow the heroic sacrifice that the church had made, and they were not disappointed. Little by little the congregations grew, as did also the church revenues, which had been very greatly diminished. In 1883, the remaining mortgage indebtedness of the church amounting to $18,000 was happily removed as was also a floating debt of nearly $4,000.

In October of the same year the church rejoicingly celebrated its fiftieth anniversary, which was attended by large and enthusiastic audiences.

The following is an outline of the program .

Wednesday evening, October 17th, Historical Paper by Leander Stone, the clerk of the church, and addresses by Hon. John Wentworth, Cyrus Bentley, and others.

Thursday evening, October 18th, Inter-denominational services, at which addresses were delivered by Dr. J. H. Barrows, of the First Presbyterian Church, Dr. H. M Scudder, of the Plymouth Congregational Church, Dr. R. M. Hatfield, of the First Methodist Church, Bishop C. E. Cheney, of the Reformed Episcopal Church and Dr. Wm. M. Lawrence, of the Second

Baptist Church, the exercises concluding with a poem by Prof. Wm. C. Richards.

Friday evening, October 19th, Ex-pastoral service, participated in by Revs. E. H. Hamlin, J. C. Burroughs, W. W. Everts and G. C. Lorimer, and by Rev. William M. Haigh, who read a sketch of the life of Rev. Allen B. Freeman, the church's first pastor.

Sunday, October 21st, there was a reunion prayer meeting at ten, a.m., in which there were many tender reminiscences, by old members of the church. At eleven, a.m., there was a memorial discourse by Rev. Dr. W. W. Everts, and an address by the pastor.

At three, p.m., there was a children's service, at which there were addresses by Cyrus Bentley, B. F. Jacobs, G. A. Marsh, the pastor and others.

At 7:30 p.m., there was a praise meeting, participated in by Rev. Lewis Raymond, Rev. E. H. Hamlin, Dr. Galusha Anderson, Prof. F. O. Marsh, Dr. F. B. Ives, Mr. B. F. Jacobs, and others.

On Monday evening, October 22nd, Central Music Hall was densely crowded at the semi-centennial celebration of the Baptist denomination of Chicago and vicinity. Rev. C. Perrin, pastor of the Western Avenue Church, the senior Baptist pastor in the city, presided. Addresses were made by Rev. J. Spencer Kennard, Rev. E. O. Taylor, of the Central Church, Rev. William M. Lawrence, of the Second Church, Rev. Galusha Anderson, of the University of Chicago, Rev. P. S. Henson, of the First Church, Rev. Duncan MacGregor, of the Ashland Avenue Church, Rev. Geo. C. Lorimer, of the Immanuel Church, and Rev. W. W.

Everts. The celebration marked an epoch in the history of the Baptist denomination in Chicago, and especially of the First Baptist Church

During the years that have elapsed since this Jubilee Celebration, the First Church has gone steadily forward, with constantly increasing strength. Besides the payment of the debts to which allusion has been made already, an organ has been purchased, costing $7,500, the whole church property has been renovated at a cost exceeding $10,000, two missions have been established, the Raymond and Wabash Avenue, the former located on Poplar Avenue, near 31st street, and holding services in a building provided for it by Mr. S. B. Lingle, one of our members; the latter holding services at present in a rented hall on 37th street near Wabash Aveuue. For the Wabash Avenue Mission lots have been purchased by the church at the southwest corner of 38th street and Wabash Avenue, at a cost of about $8,000. This amount has all been raised, Mr. F. E. Hinckley, of our church, contributing half of it. In addition, more than $1,000 has been already secured toward the erection of a building for use of the Mission. In response to Mr. John D. Rockefeller's munificent offer to give $600,000 for the founding of a Baptist College in Chicago upon condition of the contribution of $400,000 more by other persons, the members of the First Church have already subscribed more than $87,000, a single member leading off with a subscription of $50,000.

Never was the church more hopeful than now or more solidly united. In March last the present pastor completed his first seven years of services.

During this time there have been added to the church 1089 new members, 449 of them by baptism.

The total membership now is 1103.

The church looks gratefully back to the past and hopefully forward to the future. Treasuring her memories, appreciating her opportunities and responsibilities, and having faith in God, she hopes with His blessing to make her future history still more illustrious than her past has been.

ATTENDANCE.

Our Sunday School work has always been eminently prosperous. For several years there was an average attendance upon the Home and Mission Schools of more than two thousand. Upon one occasion in the Wabash Av. house, by actual count, as many as three thousand were present from the home and mission schools. At present, under the able leadership of Supt. John H. Leslie, more than a thousand are enrolled, while at the Raymond Mission, superintended by R. H. Ismon, and the Wabash Ave. Mission, superintended by C. E. Harvey, between five and six hundred more are gathered.

In addition to the Sunday School workers named above, Daniel W. Baker and J. H. Tomlinson have rendered invaluable service, both in connection with our home and mission schools.

CHURCH EXTENSIONS.

In 1843 the Tabernacle, afterwards merged into the Second Church, was organized by members dismissed from the First Church for that purpose.

In 1856 the Edina Place, Union Park and North Churches were formed chiefly from members of the First Church.

In 1864 the Second Church was constituted by members from the First and the Tabernacle churches.

In 1881 the Immanual was formed, two hundred and fifty members going from the First Church, under the leadership of Dr. Lorimer. Later still the LaSalle Ave. Church was organized out of what had been long known as the North Star Mission, which was a child of the First Church, and generously fostered by it.

LONG TERMS OF SERVICE.

Among the pastors, Dr. Everts ranks first, having served for more than nineteen years. Among the superintendents, L. D. Boone served for sixteen years, and B. F. Jacobs for eleven.

Among the deacons, Edward Goodman and Charles Duffield have been longest in office, the one having served the church for twenty seven and the other for twenty-six years.

Among church treasurers, James K. Burtis, perhaps, has no peer anywhere, having, with great satisfaction to the church, discharged the duties of the office for thirty four years.

CHURCH PROPERTIES.

The first house of worship cost about $600; the second about $6,000; the third at LaSalle and Washington Sts., about $30,000; the fourth on Wabash Ave., with grounds and furnishing, about $200,000; the fifth at the corner of South Park Ave. and 31st St., with grounds and furnishing, about $150,000.

CHURCH CONTRIBUTIONS.

It is estimated that these, exclusive of moneys raised for real estate and buildings, have amounted, since the church's history, to about half a million, while the contributions for purely benevolent objects have been not less than half a million more, for all the sacrifice represented in which we are grateful to God, who prompted the sacrifice, and devoutly pray that the next half century may witness results grander yet, "to the praise of the glory of his grace, wherein he hath made us accepted in the Beloved."

CHURCH FINANCES.

"Upon the first day of the week, let every one of you lay by him in store as God hath prospered him." 1 Cor. xvi. 2.

"Give unto the Lord the glory due unto his name; bring an offering, and come into his courts."—Psalms xcvi. 8.

The expenses of the church are met, by money received from rents of pews and sittings, and also from weekly contributions through the "envelope system."

Pews or sittings can be secured at the close of the Sunday morning or evening services, by applying to the committee, John C. Buckbee, John H. Wrenn and James F. Gillette.

Every member of the church is expected to feel under obligation to contribute toward the necessary expenses of the church, unless absolutely unable to do so.

The "envelope system of weekly contributions" is in charge of Jas. K. Burtis, Treasurer, who will at the close of any service, furnish the envelopes to those who are willing to co-operate with the church in this way.

DECLARATION OF FAITH.

Having been enabled, through divine grace, to give ourselves to the Lord, we feel it an incumbent duty, with a view, as we trust, to the glory of his name, and to the extension of his kingdom among men, to associate and covenant together, in the bonds of Christian fellowship, under the name of the first Baptist Church of the city of Chicago; and knowing that as with the heart man believeth unto righteousness, so with the mouth confession is made unto salvation; therefore, we deem it suitable to make the following declaration of our faith:

ARTICLE 1. We believe that the Scriptures of the Old and New Testament are the word of God, and the only infallible rule of faith and practice.

2 Tim. iii. 16., 17; 2 Pet. i. 21; John v. 39; Acts xvii. 11; 2 Pet. i. 19. 20.

ARTICLE 2. We believe that there is but one only living and true God, existing in three persons, Father, Son, and Holy Ghost, who are equal in nature, power and glory.

Deut. vi. 3; 1 Cor. viii. 6; 1 Tim. ii. 5; Ps. xiv. 3; Isa ix. 6; John i. 1-4, v. 24, and x. 30; 1 John v. 7.

ARTICLE 3. We believe that Adam was created in the image of God — holy, innocent and happy; but that, by violating the law of his Maker, he fell from that state and all communion with God.

Gen. 1. 26, 27; Eccl, vii. 29; Gen. iii. 6, 7.

ARTICLE 4. We believe that all men are affected by his apostasy, so that by nature we are disinclined to all good and inclined to all evil, and hence that we became servants of sin and subjects of death and all other miseries.

Rom. v. 12-19; Gen. vi. 5, and viii. 21; Ps. xiv. 1, 2, 3; Isa. i. 5, 6; Rom. i. 28-32, and vi. 21; Matt. xv. 18-20.

ARTICLE 5. We believe that the only way of salvation from this state of guilt and condemnation is through the atonement and righteousness of Jesus Christ, who, as the head and surety of his people confers upon those who repent and believe, all blessings, temporal, spiritual and eternal.

Ps. xiv. Prov. viii. Isa. liii. 4-8; Ps. xl. 6-8; Heb. vii. 22; Acts v. 31; Rom. iii. 21-26; John iii. 18, 36.

ARTICLE 6. We believe that it is the duty of all men to exercise repentance toward God, and faith toward our Lord Jesus Christ; that regeneration is produced by the efficacious grace of God, through the agency of the Holy Spirit, and that it is the duty of every believer to strive for sanctification.

John i. 13; Rom. ix. 16, and viii. 7; Phil. ii. 13; 2 Tim. i. 9; James i. 18; 1 Pet. i. 3; Eph. i. 19.

ARTICLE 7. We believe that our justification in the sight of God is not by our own works, but by the righteousness of Christ, received by faith alone.

Rom. iii. 25, 28, and iv. 4-6; Eph. i. 7.

ARTICLE 8. We believe that those who are effectually called by the Spirit of God will never finally fall from a state of grace; but are "kept by the power of God, through faith, unto salvation;" the sure and final proof of their being true believers consisting in the continuance of their attachment and obedience to Christ till the close of life.

John vi. 37; x. 28-30, and xii. 1; Phil. i. 6; 1 Pet. i. 5, Heb. vi. 17, 28; John xvii. 2; 1 John ii. 19; Matt. xxiv. 13.

ARTICLE 9. We believe that a full assurance of faith is attainable in this life, and that it is the duty of all Christians to labor with diligence to make their calling and election sure.

1 John ii. 3 and v. 13. 1.; Rom. v. 2, and viii. 16; Job xix. 25, 26; Heb. vi. 11; 2 Pet. i. 10.

ARTICLE 10. We believe there will be a resurrection, both of the just and the unjust, and that we must all appear before the judgment seat of Christ, to receive according to the deeds done in the body, whether they be good or evil, and that the sentence then passed will be eternal.

Job xix. 26, 27; Isa xxvi. 19; Dan. xii. 2; Hos. xiii. 14; Mark xii. 24-27; John v. 28, 29, and vi. 39, 40; 2 Cor. v. 10; Matt xxv. 46; 1 Cor. xv. 1; Thes. i. 9; Rev. i. 5, 6, and vii. 14-17; Acts xvii. 30, 31.

ARTICLE 11. We believe that, according to the example of the apostles and earliest disciples, sanctified by the repeated presence of Christ himself, after his resurrection, the first day of the week is to be observed as the Lord's Day, or Christian Sabbath.

Mark ii. 28; John xx. 19, 26; 1 Cor. xvi. 1, 2; Acts xx. 7; Rev. i. 10.

ARTICLE 12. We believe that the only proper subjects of baptism and the Lord's Supper are believers, and that baptism is properly administered only by immersion, and is by scriptural example a pre-requisite to communion.

Matt. iii. 5-12, 16, and xxviii. 19; Mark i. 5; Luke iii. 7, 8; Acts iii. 31, 41, 42; viii. 38-39; x. 47, 48, and xviii. 8; John iii. 23; Rom. vi. 3, 4; Col. ii. 12; 1 Pet. iii. 21.

CHURCH COVENANT.

We will endeavor, by divine grace assisting us—

To order our conversation, in the church and in the world, as becometh the Gospel of Christ, endeavoring to watch over and edify one another in love.

To attend the public worship of God with our brethren as constantly as possible, and especially to attend upon the celebration of the Lord's Supper.

Hebrews, x. 25.

To read the Scriptures, to pray with and for our families, to be sober and temperate in our deportment, just and upright in our dealings, studious to promote peace and good-will amongst all men, kind and just toward those in our employ, and faithful in the service we promise others, endeavoring in all things to maintain a conscience without offense in all relations of this present life.

To behave ourselves affectionately toward our pastor, to pray for him, and willingly contribute to his support, and especially to heed his warnings and counsels when administered according to the precept and spirit of God's word.

To cherish towards the members of the church a kind, sympathizing, faithful and forgiving behavior, never suffering sin nor needlessly exposing the infirmities of others, but exhorting one another, and so much the more as we see the day approaching.

In all cases of discipline or of business before the church, we will endeavor to avoid a contentious spirit; and if unable, from a sense of duty to God, to harmonize in opinion with others, we will recognize the right of the majority to govern.

RULES OF ORDER.

ARTICLE I.

ON MEMBERSHIP.

SECTION 1. Any person professing faith in the Lord Jesus Christ, giving evidence of a change of heart, and adopting the views of faith and practice held by this church, may, upon baptism, be received into its membership.

SEC. 2. Persons wishing to unite with this church, either by letter, or experience, or by experience and baptism, shall first present themselves before the pastor and deacons, and on their recommendation, the question of reception shall be presented to the church for its action. If any member shall object to the admission of any candidate for membership, so recommended, the case shall be referred for further investigation. It is very desirable that members should be received by a unanimous vote and that the question of reception shall not be taken in presence of the candidate.

SEC. 3. Excluded members may be restored to membership on confession of their error and giving evidence of repentance.

SEC. 4. Any member in good standing shall be entitled to a letter of dismission to any church of the same faith and order with which this church is in fellowship.

SEC. 5. It is recommended to any member removing from the city and vicinity into a community where a church of the same faith and order exists—to take a letter of dismission to such church ; but if there be no such church in the community—to report to this church in person or by letter as often as once in six months.

SEC. 6. Letters of dismission shall be valid for six months only.

SEC. 7. The names of members absenting themselves, without sufficient reason, and not reporting to the church, or removing out of knowledge of the church, for two years, may (after their names have been reported by the deacons) by vote of the church, be dropped from its list of members. Such names shall be reported by the deacons at least once a year.

SEC. 8. In all cases of personal offense between members, the party feeling aggrieved shall endeavor by a private interview with the offending member, to obtain satisfaction according to the rule laid down by our Saviour, in Matt. xviii.

ARTICLE II.

OF MEETINGS.

SEC. 1. Meetings for public worship shall be under the general supervision of the pastor and deacons — as instructed by the church.

SEC. 2. The covenant meeting of the church shall be held on the Wednesday evening next preceding the first Lord's day in each month.

SEC. 3. The regular business meeting of the church shall be held on the Wednesday evening next preceding the covenant meeting.

SEC. 4. The annual meeting of the church shall be held on the second Wednesday evening in January in each year, at which time the officers and standing committees of the church shall render their reports for the year preceding, and the election of officers and standing committees for the year ensuing, shall take place as provided below.

SEC. 5. Special meetings for business may be called by the pastor, or by the deacons, or by the clerks on the request of any of the standing committees of the church, or on the request of any five members of the church, provided notice of such meeting be given from the pulpit on the Lord's day preceding the day of meeting, the notice naming the object for which the meeting is called.

ARTICLE III.

OF OFFICERS.

The officers of the church shall be elected annually by ballot, except as otherwise specified :

1. Deacons not less than thirteen, twelve of whom shall be elected in 1882 as follows : Four of the number for one year, four of the number for two years and four of the number for three years. And annually after 1882 four of the number shall be elected for three years.
2. A clerk.
3. An assistant clerk.
4. A treasurer.
5. Three trustees.
6. A finance committee, consisting of three. One shall be elected in 1882 for one year, one for two years, one for three years, and annually thereafter one shall be elected to serve for three years.

7. A committee on music, three in number.

8. A baptismal committee, six in number.

9. A committee on collections, three in number.

10. A committee on church missions, five in number.

11. Officers of the Sunday school as follows: A superintendent, two assistant superintendents, treasurer, secretary, librarian and assistant librarian.

12. An auditing committee, two in number.

All the above officers and committees shall hold over until their successors are elected.

All the officers of the church and committees shall be members of the church.

ARTICLE IV.

The church shall, at its regular business meeting in December, elect a committee of three to nominate officers and standing committees for the annual election in the January following, provided that the officers of the Sunday school shall be nominated by a joint committee consisting of the said church committee on nominations and a committee of three elected by the officers and teachers of the Sunday school.

ARTICLE V.

DUTIES OF OFFICERS.

SECTION 1. The deacons shall be associated with the pastor in having charge of the spiritual interests of the church, of the administration of the ordinances, of the fund for relief of the poor, and of the order of the house of worship. They shall also have charge of the supply of the pulpit during any vacation of the pastorate.

CLERK.

SEC. 2. It shall be the duty of the clerk to attend all regular meetings of the church, and keep the minutes thereof, and to keep a book in which he shall record at length all the motions and resolutions passed by the church, and also the reports of all committees. It shall also be the duty of the clerk to notify each officer and all the members of each committee that may be elected by the church, of their election.

SEC. 3. The assistant clerk shall perform such clerical duties as the clerk may need and require, and in case of the absence of the clerk from any regular meeting of the church the assistant shall perform the duties of the clerk.

TREASURER.

SEC. 4. It shall be the duty of the treasurer to keep a book or books, in which he shall keep an account of all moneys received by him, and of all disbursements made by him, and for what purpose.

The treasurer shall not be at liberty to pay out money on account of the church, except under the direction of the finance committee.

It shall be the duty of the treasurer to report to the finance committee quarterly each year, on the first days of January, April, July and October.

The books of the treasurer shall at all times be open to the inspection of the finance committee.

TRUSTEES.

SEC. 5. It shall be the duty of the trustees to hold the title of all property belonging to the First Baptist Church. The trustees alone are clothed with full power of the church to execute any deeds, mortgages, notes or other evidences of indebtedness, under the direction of the church and not otherwise.

The trustees shall have the entire charge and control of the house of worship and all the property of the First Baptist Church, and are authorized to employ a sexton and such other agents or servants as they may deem advisable for the proper care of said property; and said sexton and any other servants shall be accountable directly to the trustees and to no other person or persons.

The trustees are authorized to make repairs, changes and improvements upon said church property at their discretion, but are not authorized to contract or make obligations for the expenditure of money without first being authorized so to do by the finance committee.

FINANCE COMMITTEE.

SEC. 6. The finance committee shall hold regular quarterly meetings at such time as they may determine in the months of January, April, July and October in each year, and may adopt such rules and regulations for the government of said committee, and the transaction of its business, as it may deem for the best interests of the church.

The finance committee shall have the management of all the finances of the church, shall provide the ways and means for the payment of any obligations made by it ; and all expenditures of whatsoever name or nature made in behalf of the church, shall first be approved and authorized by the finance committee, provided that the officers of the Sunday school shall have the management of the finances of the Sunday school, irrespective of this committee.

AUDITING COMMITTEE.

SEC. 7. The auditing committee shall examine the accounts of the treasurer and finance committee, and audit and certify to the same, reporting their action to the church at the annual meeting.

COLLECTION COMMITTEE.

SEC. 8. The collection committee shall take charge of all regular and special collections, except those for the poor ; shall receive and count the same, and deposit the funds with the treasurer, reporting the same to the chairman of the finance committee. Said commttee shall act jointly, or at least by two of its members, and if at any time when a collection shall be taken two of the members of said collection committee are not present, the member present shall select some other officer of the church, to assist him in counting the collection. Any subscriptions made for the church, or benevolent purposes not paid at the time made, shall be collected by said committee, under such regulations as the committee may adopt, and members of the church or others, absent at the time of collection, shall be called upon by said committee for their contributions, as far as practicable.

MUSIC COMMITTEE.

SEC. 9. The music committee, under general direction of the church, shall provide the music for the church. This committee shall have full charge of the furnishing of musical instruments, the employment of a leader for the choir, and an organist, and such singers as in the judgment of the committee should be employed, and arrange for the amount and time of payment. But no liability shall be incurred or money expended by the music committee, except with the consent and approval of the finance committee.

SEC. 10. The baptismal committee shall make suitable provision for and attend upon candidates for baptism, and shall report to the clerk in writing within one week the names of all persons baptised.

SEC. 11. The committee on church missions shall have general supervision of all mission schools maintained by the church, shall report to the church from time to time their needs in money and workers, shall nominate superintendents for the same to the church and shall be an advisory committee with such superintendents as far as may be necessary. It shall be their duty also to explore new fields for church missions as they may think best and they may in general present to the church the claims of any field for their work and aid.

SEC. 12. The superintendent of the Sunday school shall have general supervision of the home school, and may call upon the other officers of the home school named above as an advisory committee. The officers of the school may also appoint such other assistants in the different departments of their work as may be necessary.

SEC. 13. All standing committees shall meet and organize by the election of a chairman and secretary, within ten days after election, and keep a record of their meetings.

SEC. 14. All rules and regulations in conflict with the above are hereby rescinded.

SEC. 15. Recognizing the great value and importance of woman's work in the church, we recommend the women of the church to co-operate with the various societies, and report annually to the church the results of their work.

ARTICLE VI.

AMENDMENT OF RULES.

SEC. 1. These rules may be suspended during the session of any regular meeting of the church, by a vote of two-thirds of the members present and voting.

SEC. 2. These rules may be amended at any regular meeting of the church, provided that one week's notice shall be given in writing and from the pulpit, of any proposed amendment.
